

Gregory Coni grew up outside of Allentown, PA and has an older sister, Lauren, who has Down Syndrome. Throughout high school and into college he volunteered a lot of his time to work with individuals with intellectual disabilities. He participated as a lead counselor for Camp PALS, was the club president of his High School's Best Buddies and even volunteered with the Eastern PA Down Syndrome Center working to start a sibling group.

Greg has since graduated from Carnegie Mellon University with a Bachelors in Architecture and a minor in Environmental Studies and has come to make Pittsburgh his home. He currently works as a licensed architect at GBBN. He has recently served as the Chair for the Young Architects Forum of AIA Pittsburgh and is excited to bring all of the skills from that position to his role on the DSAP board. His current interactions with the DSAP community has been nothing but smiles, joy, and excitement and he looks to continue that energy and bring his past experiences to grow and support the DSAP community.
